10 buildings for the super-rich

A report from Wealth-X has revealed which of the world's luxe, ultra-cool skyscraper apartments will be next on billionaires' hit lists. Check out the top ten.

3. One57, New York, US

Average price per square foot: US$6,000

Penthouse: US$90 million (sold in 2012)

Trophy credentials: A neighbour to 432, developed by Gary Barnett's Extell, this super-tall development on 57th Street claims to be a vertical billionaire's row. Rising 1,004 feet tall over Midtown Manhattan it is the tallest residential building in New York. There are 95 condos with amenities including a yoga studio, an arts and crafts atelier room and a pet grooming room. French Pritzker Prize-winning architect Christian de Portzamparc envisioned the project, while Thomas Juul-Hansen did the interiors. The flagship Park Hyatt New York and its health club and spa at the base of the building will be opening this summer, designed by interior designers Yabu Pushelburg.
